Content

Introduction ............................................................................................................................................. 4
1. Professional Preparation of Future Teachers and Supervising Classroom Teachers in the Light of International Trends......................................................................................... 6
2. The Reality of Teaching Practicum during the Past Decade: Development, Stagnation, Regress? ........................................................................................................................................ 19
3. Innovating Pedagogical Practicums at the Faculty of Education of the University of South Bohemia in České Budějovice .................................................................................................. 27
4. The Practical Preparation of Student Teachers of the First Grade at Primary Schools .... 34
5. Motivation and Self-Regulation in Preservice Teacher Training ................................................. 44
6. The Role of Clinical Schools in Teacher Preparation ....................................................................... 50
7. Supporting Teacher Educators to Support Beginning Teachers to Learn through Reflection – Training their Attention through Clean Language and the Systemic Modelling Process .................................................................................. 63
8. Cooperation Between Student Teachers and Teacher Trainers in the Classroom ................. 72
   In Conclusion: Teacher Practice as a Never Ending Story ............................................................ 82